mood9 Begins Production of Short Sports Documentary mood9 is excited to announce it has begun production on its flagship short documentary that delves into the lives and experiences of student athletes. This short will provide an in-depth exploration of the unique challenges and commitments these individuals face both in their athletic pursuits and in their academic lives.

In collaboration with Kent State University Athletics, this project underscores mood9's mission to produce impactful, narrative-driven media that deeply resonates with audiences. We look forward to sharing a compelling portrayal of student athletes and illustrating the dedication required to balance both academic and athletic endeavors.
